

Undergraduate Matriculation

Matriculation begins once an accepted applicant submits the enrollment form, corresponding deposit, and begins coursework, typically on the first day of class.

Matriculation will continue as long as a student continues to earn credits. A student may stop out for up to two semesters. The Registrar's Office will administratively withdraw any student who does not show evidence of academic progress after the last day to register for classes in the third semester. These students must apply for re-admission if they wish to reenroll and, if accepted, will need to adhere to the curriculum requirements and prevailing tuition and fees.
