

Course Levels

Lower-Division Courses (100-200):

100-level: Primarily introductory and foundational courses, often for first year students, may include general education requirements.

200-level: Intermediate-level courses that build upon the knowledge from 100-level courses, potentially requiring prerequisites.

Upper-Division Courses (300-400):

300-level: Advanced-intermediate courses, typically for juniors and seniors, requiring more in-depth knowledge of the subject matter.

400-level: Advanced courses, often for seniors, and may include more specialized or research-focused topics.
